CHICAGO, IL – March 6, 2018 – Analyte Health, the leading platform connecting patients to diagnostic services, today announced that it was recognized by CIOReview as one of the 50 Most Promising Healthcare Solution Providers for 2018. The company's recognition stems from its innovative approach to providing consumers with easier access to and understanding of health and wellness lab tests.

"We're excited that our mission to help consumers live healthier lives is getting noticed among healthcare technologists and industry leaders," said Kevin Weinstein, CEO of Analyte Health. "We hear every day from satisfied customers about how our offering helps them take control of their health, and this recognition is icing on the cake."

CIOReview analyzed scores of healthcare solution providers in the market and recognized 50 companies that are at the forefront of tackling significant healthcare challenges. Evaluated by a distinct panel of judges including CEOs, CIOs, and CMOs, the recognized companies are disrupting the industry and heralding a new era for healthcare.

"What is particularly satisfying about this award is that it highlights some of the work we have done with our enterprise clients and partners," continued Weinstein. "Our direct-to-consumer business is perhaps our most visible, but the work we do in collaboration with other healthcare stakeholders – from telemedicine, to pharmaceuticals, to other health and wellness companies – is often more complicated and impactful. To know that enterprise class executives see Analyte Health not only as a good partner, but also an innovator is a great testament to our team's work."

In addition to being recognized by CIOReview, Analyte Health was previously named by Healthcare Tech Outlook as a Top 10 Telemedicine Provider for 2017, regularly maintains a 98% customer satisfaction rating, and maintains an A+ rating from the Better Business Bureau.
